CCSD to hold public input meetings on sex education curriculum Parents and the community are invited to attend

LAS VEGAS – The Clark County School District (CCSD) will host a series of public input meetings throughout November to involve parents, employees and members of the community in a conversation about the district's sex education curriculum.

"The district is looking forward to taking this next step in the right direction," said CCSD Superintendent Pat Skorkowsky. "We want the community to know that we are listening and that we are committed to collaborating with them to determine what should be taught in our schools. It is important to us that we have a sex education curriculum that meets our students' needs while respecting the values of our community."

The input received during these meetings will be presented to the Board of Trustees and to Nevada legislators who are expected to consider the topic during the next legislative session in Carson City.

A survey that will allow parents and the community to provide input will also be released by the school district in the following weeks.
